Editor's Comment

I should like to welcome the new readers of the IITRAN Bulletin. I hope that we can be of some service to you.

The Bulletin is intended to be a "working newsletter". This could be interpreted to mean that it takes a little "work" from each of you to make a "letter" that is filled with "news". I would like to have you make suggestions concerning the content of the Bulletin. What can we do to make it more useful for you?

Everyone would be interested in learning about the computer activities that are present in your school. It only takes a minute to write a short paragraph and send it in. I would like to continue the IITRAN Notes section that was started in the April issue, so pick up your pen and start writing.

If you know of a Computer Club, send us the name and school. In the next issue of IITRAN we will publish the list so that the groups can communicate with each other.

I hope that you find this issue informative and interesting.
